

Good Night (Not Really)

Written by Nan Evenson

Illustrated by Katrina Matkevych

Good Night (Not Really) is the first book in the Not Really series.

It features Lisa and Charlie in a humorous counting book with darling friends and a surprise ending. (It's really a good morning book.) Unlike many counting books, this one helps children learn to count backward.

KIRKUS REVIEW - A humorous and spirited counting tale for young readers.

Finalist - The Wishing Shelf Book Awards

5-Star Review from Readers' Favorite: ". . . a clever and fun way to teach young readers how to count forward and backward . . . The author leads young readers through a series of fun-induced numbering skills that will have them chuckling and wanting to dance around."

NAN EVENSON

After years of working in business as well as tutoring math and writing skills to children and teens, I decided to write books. I am working on the Not Really series and a young adult time travel story. I've had multiple short stories published and have earned two writing awards. My Not Really picture book series is unique in that it teaches the skills of counting backward and by twos. Fantastic illustrations and surprise endings will delight children and their readers, as well.
